1. PHARMACEUTICAL INVESTIGATORS MEETING AND TRAINING

A Pharmaceutical Investigators Meeting and training conducted by Police Specialist Kelly Raker, the Drug Abuse Reduction Task Force (DART), and the Warren County Drug Task Force will be held at the Police Academy on Friday, April 27, 2012, from 0900 to 1200 hours.

Although the training is directed to pharmaceutical investigators, any interested law enforcement officer within the four southwest Ohio counties is encouraged and invited to attend. Topics covered will include:

- Doctor Shopping/Diversion "How To"
- Changes in the ORC
- Health Care Professional Investigations
- Prescription Drug Trends
- Phone Subpoenas - How They Work for the Investigator
- SWAP Intelligence
- The Ohio Automated Rx Reporting System (OARRS), and
- Cases that Cross Borders

There is no cost to attend this meeting/training. However, space is limited and a reservation is required. Personnel interested in attending must submit a Form 17 through the chain of command to their bureau commander. Officers may attend on-duty with the approval of their supervisor. No overtime will be provided for personnel attending this training. Bureau commanders are requested to submit a prioritized list of personnel approved to attend to Police Specialist Kelly Raker, Narcotics and Vice Section, no later than Monday, April 16, 2012.

All affected bureau commanders will be notified of the final approved roster by Friday, April 20, 2012. Questions regarding this meeting and training should be directed to Police Specialist Kelly Raker, Narcotics and Vice Section, at 564-2227 or 678-1999.

2. MEDICATION DISPOSAL DAY

A Medication Disposal Day will be held on Saturday, April 28, 2012, from 1000 hours to 1400 hours. Two disposal locations will be available for any person wishing to get rid of unused medications. The available locations are:

- The Kroger store, located at 4777 Kenard Avenue
- The Kroger store, located at 2310 Ferguson Road

Law enforcement officers at these locations will collect and properly dispose of all unused and/or expired prescription and over-the-counter medications, along with the containers, in a safe environmentally friendly manner.

Department personnel are encouraged to let citizens know about this opportunity. Attached to these Staff Notes is a flyer containing additional information regarding the event.

3. EMOTIONAL INTELLIGENCE (EI) AND LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT TRAINING SERIES

Attached to these Staff Notes is the Emotional Intelligence (EI) newsletter for the month published by Training Section. The subject this month is adaptability.

Adaptability – Flexibility in handling change. Leaders with this EI competence:

- Smoothly handle multiple demands, shifting priorities, and rapid change
- Adapt their responses and tactics to fit fluid circumstances
- Are flexible in how they see events

4. CELL PHONE ANALYSIS-A NEW INVESTIGATIVE TOOL TRAINING

The Ohio Peace Officer Training Academy (O.P.O.T.A.) is providing “Cell Phone Analysis-A New Investigative Tool” training at the Cincinnati Police Academy on Friday, June 15, 2012, from 0800 to 1700 hours.

This course will review the various types of evidence obtainable from cell phones and the most effective methods to secure and preserve this material. Other topics of discussion will include: Triangulation, Sexting, Geo-tagging, and Global Positioning Systems (GPS) considerations.

There is no cost to attend this training. Personnel interested in attending the training must submit a Form 17, through the chain of command to Training Section, no later than Friday, April 20, 2012. Training Section will complete the registration and notify personnel approved to attend. Officers may attend on-duty with the approval of their supervisor. No overtime will be provided for personnel attending this training. Questions regarding this training should be directed to Lieutenant Christine Briede, Training Section, at 352-3562.

5. COMPSTAT INFORMATION

Attached to these Staff Notes is the most current COMPSTAT Information. Department personnel are directed to review this information to ensure they remain familiar with crime patterns and trends occurring within the City and their areas of responsibility.

6. THANK YOU LETTERS

Attached to these Staff Notes are letters of appreciation and praise written to the Police Chief for the professionalism displayed by our Department, specifically the following personnel:

Police Officer Amber Burress
Police Officer Darrick Johnson

Police Officer Steven Mittermeier
Police Officer Jason Ader

7. HEALTHY LIFESTYLES HEALTH SCREENINGS

Surviving Change: The Emotional Prerequisites

"If there is any emotional competence changing times call for, it is adaptability. Stars in this competence relish change and find exhilaration in innovation." The Competent Manager, Boyatzis

Adaptability:

Adaptability and "Flow"

Definition: Adaptability means being able to change as circumstances require it—the ability to adjust oneself readily to different conditions. It recognizes that life will bring us unforeseen challenges and if we are to honor our values and goals, we must adjust and learn as we go. Adaptability requires a certain willingness to let go, sometimes even grieving unmet expectations or ideas of how things "should" have been.

Leaders who are adaptable can juggle multiple demands without losing their focus or energy, and are comfortable with the inevitable ambiguities or organizational life. Such leaders can be flexible in adapting to new challenges, nimble in adjusting to fluid change, and limber in their thinking in the face of new data or realities.

Are You Adaptable?

(Personal Development, Fresh ideas on personal development)

What does it mean to be adaptable, and why is it important? This is one of the skills I see holding many people back from achieving what they are capable of. It manifests itself in statements like "I don't know how to do that", or "that would be too hard", or simply displaying poor results when taking on a new challenge.

Adaptability means being open to ANY new challenge or changing situation, regardless of your background and skills, and refusing to place preconceived judgments on the challenge or presume it's something you can't handle, or won't like. Unfortunately most people have a problem with that; they get comfortable in a certain role, whether that's career or social interactions. If things are too comfortable for you all the time, ask yourself if you're avoiding challenges that may make life more interesting and rewarding?

Being adaptable can lead to great things; such as career growth, learning new skills, better relationships, and generally being happier when you see what you truly are capable of. You may not always know where a new life situation will lead, but if you approach it with a positive attitude, and give it your best effort, it will usually have a positive result down the road.

Being adaptable is more than just saying "yes" when offered a new challenge, it also means striving for excellence every step of the way. You may need to research on the Internet, read books, ask others about it, practice, create a plan of action, or other things depending on its nature. This is a key quality of a good leader, in that they can take personal responsibility to learn about something and prepare for it. The opposite are those who simply wait around for someone to show them how to do it, or just figure they will "wing it".

Another term for adaptability is "flexibility". Look at your own career, do you often say "that's just how we do it" if someone suggests a better way to do something? Or do you open your mind to new ideas, even if it may take effort to change current practices, and a potentially hard time convincing others? It's ultimately your choice whether to just ride through life always taking the easiest course of action, or rise to challenges few others will take on, and feel better about what you are able to accomplish and do for others. Build your skills and show the world what you are capable of.

Another aspect of adaptability is keeping pace with external change. Life is all about change, and if you don't keep pace with that change you will be left behind. This is very true with many careers, where you must constantly keep abreast of the latest research, new products, and new techniques. Would you want to see a doctor who finished medical school 20 years ago and hadn't bothered to keep up with all the new findings in the last 20 years? Are you keeping up with the knowledge of your own career field?

Challenge yourself this week on adaptability by thinking about something new that's come into your life which you've resisted, whether it's at work, in your social life, around the house, or just something you know you should learn how to do but have resisted it. Take on the challenge with maximum excellence and perseverance, and see how you do!

Workplace Coach: Change is coming - you need to change with it

By MAUREEN MORIARTY, SPECIAL TO THE P-I*

How do you react to change? Your answer may affect your career -- more than you might believe.

"Resilient" individuals are recognized for their ability to absorb change more effectively than their less resilient counterparts; they adapt to change positively, keeping their composure, without the change negatively affecting their emotional, mental or physical well-being -- or of those around them. Less resilient individuals tend to react with fight (emotional outbursts, passive/aggressive behavior or sabotaging the change effort) or flight ("I hit the job boards the day I heard the news.").

Ambiguity is everywhere. The workplace today is full of changes, uncertainty and complexity from changing work flow, processes and overlapping roles to reporting structures and new information/technology systems. The rules of how to succeed in the workplace are changing. Companies place a high value on employees who can adapt to all this change successfully. The winners will be those who are identifiable for their adaptability and resiliency -- those seen as effective, optimistic, supportive and proactively seeking solutions. The losers will be those seen as being overwhelmed, putting up roadblocks to success, paralyzed, "stuck" and resentful.

Dr. Spencer Johnson illustrates the importance of anticipating and adapting to change in his simplistic parable "Who Moved My Cheese?" The book is full of cheese (change) nuggets:

"If you do not change, you can become extinct."

"Smell the cheese often so you know when it is getting old."

"Movement in a new direction helps you find new cheese."

The cheese story reminds us to embrace change vs. becoming immobilized or traumatized by it. Simply put, change is coming -- so get over and on with it!

Adaptability has become a workplace buzzword -- and a key hiring standard. Staffing for all this change has become important. I counsel job candidates to prepare a story that demonstrates their "adaptability" for interviews. Employers equate the ability to deal with uncertain and unfamiliar situations as key to potential success in positions. Being seen as the one who "makes it work" may be the difference in getting the job or promotion.

While easier said than done, here are a few ways that employees and managers can increase the odds of adaptability and resiliency:

- Self-awareness is essential. Be aware of your emotion to the change but "choose" your behavior in how you react to it. Extreme negative reactivity can -- and will -- hurt your career.
- Communicate to management your desire to learn new coping and adaptability skills. Demonstrate you are willing to improve and change. Ask what training or coaching is available to you to become more valuable to the company.

*Post-Intelligencer Online Newspaper

- Develop an open mind. Be curious -- ask questions. Explore and consider vs. deciding quickly or rigidly planting your stake in the ground. Change often opens up better and new opportunities.
- Be proactive. Take action given calculated risks and have a plan for problems. Remember -- it's not IF problems will come up -- it's how you deal with them that makes all the difference.
- Remember Ben Franklin's wisdom: "The definition of insanity is doing the same thing over and over and expecting different results." Be identified as one who challenges the status quo and provides solutions (you will stand out from those who hide behind, "It's always been done that way.").
- Identify the positive opportunities and keep a big-picture perspective. Just because your company just got taken over doesn't mean disaster -- it may mean good riddance to processes that have been getting in your way of success.
- Attitude is everything, and humor helps. Scream in your car (not your cubicle) and try viewing the change as another #@! growth opportunity!
- Be compassionate. Empathy and understanding that change can be "scary" and uncomfortable can go a long way toward soothing ruffled employees. Back those willing to challenge the status quo (good leaders pave the way for their people to be successful).
- Be "coachable" -- professional coaches or supportive mentors can help.
- Be a lifetime learner -- stay current. Keep adding to your knowledge and skill base. Those that stagnate will not thrive in the new order of the workplace.
- Accept it and embrace it. Change is coming -- it's inevitable.

Adaptability also means being creative to find solutions that work. Most organizations can't afford to carry those who fight them tooth and nail over changes to improve the business. If you aren't moving forward, someone else is passing you by.

Cincinnati Police Department

Cincinnati, Ohio 45202

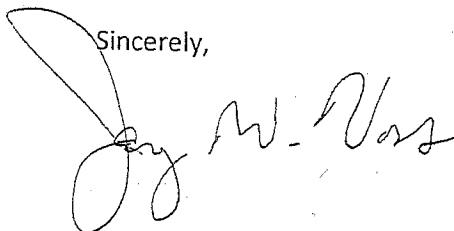

Dear Sir/Madame:

This letter is in regards to an interaction I had with 2 police officers around 1AM on March 18. My daughter had joined some friends to celebrate St. Patrick's Day downtown on Saturday. She stayed longer than she should have and certainly had at least one more beverage than she should have. She asked some friends to help her get in a taxi. The friends did so but left immediately and my daughter could not tell the taxi driver her address. So, he called the police and 2 officers responded. One was a white male 35-45 years old and I never got his name. The other was a 30'ish year old white female who identified herself as Officer Mittermeier. They went through my daughter's purse and used our daughter's cell phone to contact her mother. They asked that we send someone to come and get her and I drove to the scene.

I only spoke with Officer Mittermeier as, after I parked my car, she and I discussed the situation about 20 feet away from where the other officer was standing next to my daughter who was seated in a chair. Officer Mittermeier was polite and professional and dealt with the situation quickly and effectively. While my interaction with the other officer was very brief, he too was polite and professional. This is an era when the police are frequently portrayed as over-bearing and/or abusive to the public and, on rare occasions, the portrayal is accurate. However, in the case, my experience could not have been more positive. The officers demonstrated both intellect and sensitivity in approaching this matter in the way they did. Their behavior was first class and the whole thing could not have been handled any better. I wanted to send this letter so that the officers and the department could get proper credit for a positive interaction.

If you have any questions about this letter, feel free to contact me at the address above or on my cell phone, 513-646-

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jay M. Voss". The signature is stylized with a large, looped initial "J" and a long, sweeping underline.

Commanding Officer District 1
Cincinnati Police Department
210 Ezzard Charles Drive
Cincinnati Ohio 45202

Sir,

This morning as I was driving east on Gest Street at the intersection of Dalton the sun was shining in my eyes and I became confused and ran through a red light. I had the unfortunate situation that officer D>Johnson was immediately behind me, he pulled me over for the offense/

Officer Johnson could not have been more courteous. As he pointed out emotionally I probably should not have been driving this day. Several months ago due to cancer I suffered the loss of my right ear, with hearing aid in the other ear it makes it difficult for me to understand, add to this in the past week I lost my grandson who was 28 years old. Officer Johnson surmised that it was not a good idea for me to continue on my trip and asked if some one would come and help me. I told him my son in law Captain Tom Thomas was in the fire department he made arrangements to get in touch with him to come and help me out. My son in law showed up with another firefighter who drove my car home.

Another officer arrived on the scene to assist officer Johnson I failed to get his name. Both the officers were kind and considerate and they could not have handled the situation in a more professional manner, will you please thank them for me.

Respectfully,

Larry Schmolt Assistan Fire Chief Retired

Cincinnati, Ohio 45202

Dear Officer Ader,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and the Cincinnati Police Department, for your assistance with the attempt to locate the missing juvenile, Collin Barton. Although the outcome was not the one we wanted, your professionalism and dedication to the citizens of Hamilton County speaks volumes about you and the department.

Sincerely,

Gerald E. Hayhow
